Lively Exposure to Cuban Arts & Culture

In the first half of the 20th century, Americans loved to hop down to Havana for a long weekend, spiced with the climate and culture of the tropics. Now that idea is back with this 4-day/3-night cultural exchange program created to connect you with the irresistible rhythms and vivid art of Cuba. In one concise, complete weekend you'll connect with the city's artists, musicians and dancers at an extraordinary level. You will chat with the city's most creative people, applaud their performances, and even get in a salsa lesson. To get a feel for everyday life, you'll shop in a farmers' market with the locals, cook lunch with a Cuban chef, meet a family that restores classic tail-finned cars, and more. From your ideally located accommodations, you are close to every essential site from a working cigar factory to Ernest Hemingway's home. Throughout, you'll eat at some of the city's finest privately-owned restaurants, explore historic landmarks, and hear firsthand stories from the Cuban people about the art of living in Havana - for a long weekend you'll never forget.

DAY 1

HAVANA / MURALEANDO

- Visit a local farmer's market and rations store
- Meet artists and musicians in the colorful La Muraleando neighborhood
- Enjoy a guided stroll in Old Havana
- Go bar hopping, Hemingway style

After thinking about it for so long, you're finally in Havana! And all of your thoughts, ideas, and images will begin to crystallize to give you a true sense of this fascinating city and country. Starting immediately, you get an inside look at the lives of everyday Cubans as you visit a market where you can chat with the locals and the farmers tending their stalls. You also stop at one of the rations stores where families buy rice, beans, sugar and other staples. La Murleando is a neighborhood covered in bright murals, wall paintings, and art installations. (The shrine surrounded by banana-yellow hubcaps is always a favorite.) We'll meet our friends Manuel and Victor, and hang out with local artists and musicians. And when those musicians start playing, remember this: Cubans love to dance...and nothing makes them happier than when you join in. They don't care if you have the moves; they just want you to let the beat take over! Later, you'll go for a stroll in Habana Vieja (Old Havana) with a local historian for their personal take on Cuban history. This 500-year-old UNESCO World Heritage Site is the original heart of Havana, built by the Spanish, burned to the ground by pirates, and still a fine district of baroque and neoclassic buildings.

While many of the buildings are well preserved or restored, you also get a sense of the challenges that lie ahead as you see a number of buildings that fell into ruin over the past half-century and await restoration. Not long ago, the government of Cuba finally allowed entrepreneurs to start their own privately owned and operated restaurants known as paladares. Your evening begins with dinner at one of our favorites. Afterward, you can retire for the evening, or you can join your guide to retrace Hemingway's footsteps on a nighttime walk that ends at El Floridita, a small bar Hemingway loved, where you can catch some live music and sip a daiquiri.

Overnight: Havana

Meals: L, D

DAY 2

HAVANA

- Watch cigar rollers at their work desks • Explore Cuba-U.S. history and the Revolution • Meet classic car restoration experts • Visit with an art curator

This morning, you have one of those experiences you can only get in Havana, as you visit a traditional, working, cigar-making factory. As you'll see, there's nothing automated about the process. Our aficionado-friend Augustine walks you through the rows of small stations where workers listen to the 'reader' recap the day's events from the pages of the local newspaper, while they select leaves and roll each cigar by hand. It's a fascinating process and you'll have a chance to light up a cigar if you're so inclined. Then a former Cuban diplomat and professor of political science leads you on an exploration of the island's history. On visits that include the U.S.S. Maine, the Museum of Revolution and Hotel Nacional, you'll have a chance to ask your questions and get candid insights on the once-close and always complicated history of our two countries. After lunch, you get a terrific inside look into Cuba's car culture at a privately-owned business where artisans restore the classic cars (and paint them in just about every color you can imagine). You'll have time to talk with our friends, husband and wife Julio and Nidialys, about the cars they treasure and the challenges of being small-business owners. They've hosted famous visitors from Michelle Obama to Mark Zuckerberg. Today it's your turn, as the craftsmen who work on the cars take you for a tail-finned cruise to the Malécon, 5th Avenue and Revolution Square. Time magazine recently named Fabrica de Arte Cubano (Cuban Art Factory) one of the World's Greatest Places. This complex is the pinnacle of the Cuban arts scene and on a curated visit you'll meet some of the artists personally and hear about what's inspiring them nowadays. If you find a piece that appeals to you, you can purchase it directly from the artist who created it. Then the choice is yours: Stick around afterward for dinner and a lively evening or head off to the Tropicana or maybe the Buena Vista Social Club for a performance.

Overnight: Havana

Meals: B, L

DAY 3

HAVANA / FINCA VIGIA

- Visit Hemingway's home • Cook Cuban specialties with a local chef • Brush up on your salsa moves

No American was ever more identified with Cuba than Ernest Hemingway. This morning, with a local friend you'll visit Finca Vigia, the author's Cuban home. On the grounds, you'll get a fascinating look into rooms that are furnished as they were from 1939 to 1960, the period when the author lived here and wrote works including "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Midday, a local chef invites you into the kitchen to help prepare some popular Cuban dishes in a cooking instruction. Then you sit down to lunch on the very tasty results. You've gotten the picture by now that the Cubans have an infectious enthusiasm for the arts. One of the best examples is the local private dance company that's excited to give you a performance of Afro-Caribbean dance music. These young dancers have an energetic, percussive style that really captures the Cuban tempo, and it's a treat to see them in action. When you select your outfit for dinner tonight, think about what will move with you on the dance floor. The perfect complement to this day comes at the hands (and hips) of professional dancers. You're off to a privately-owned dance studio for a salsa lesson that will have everybody swiveling and smiling and getting a real feel for the native Cuban spirit. ?????? Your farewell dinner this evening is at Havana's most elegant paladar, famous for its role in the Cuban movie "Fresa y Chocolate".

Meals: B, L, D

DAY 4

HAVANA

• Chat with a renowned photojournalist

Did you ever meet Castro in person? No? Well the good news for you is that the photojournalist you meet this morning had virtually unfettered access to him. So, you'll have the chance to hear stories of the last half century as well as to learn the backstories behind some iconic photos. You'll have time for a final Cuban lunch on your own before you return to the airport for your homebound flight.

Overnight: None

Meals: B

DAY 5

HERE'S WHY...

Thanks to the personal hospitality and generous spirit of the individual Cubans who have become our friends over many years and repeated visits to the island, all of the interactions and activities you enjoy during your time in Cuba are fully compliant with the U.S. government's "Support for the Cuban People" general license guidelines. Count on Classic Journeys to make sure your trip is 100% legal and to do all of the record keeping for the Treasury Department and OFAC on your behalf. It's just another reason why National Geographic Traveler named our Cuban trips one of their "50 Tours of a Lifetime".

ENJOY THE UNEXPECTED

When you travel with Classic Journeys, you can expect handcrafted surprises built into every trip, but some things just can't be anticipated. Unusual weather, a once-a-year festival or an unscheduled site closing will inspire us and your local guide to improvise and modify this itinerary. Likewise, the hotels named here are used on the majority of our trips, but occasionally one of them can't accommodate us. If that happens, you can count on us to let you know before departure and make sure you're in a hotel of equal or better quality. It's our goal to make your trip exceptional!

Any discount offered cannot be combined with other offers, and only applies to published (regularly scheduled public) departure dates in our catalogs or on our website.

THE Classic Journeys Difference

HANDCRAFTING TRIPS OF A LIFETIME.

At the end of the day, we fundamentally believe that every guest on every departure of every trip should have a trip of a lifetime. We're fortunate to play the role of well-connected friend, linking our guests with amazing guides, artisans, winemakers, hoteliers, restaurateurs, naturalists, and too many others to list here.

That's what motivates me and our team — in our La Jolla HQ and around the world — every day. Join Us!
